Design House Film Series: The Barbican

The Barbican is the most important European art centre and most representative achievement of Brutalist architecture. Barbicania, built as a personal diary, recounts on a daily basis all what the directors, Ila Bêka and Louise Lemoine, have discovered during their urban trip from the top floors of the towers to the underground levels of the art centre. Through an impressive gallery of portraits, the film draws an intimate human map of the place, breathing life into this harsh district and questioning the durability of this utopia from the 50s.

PROGRAM

Moisture Control and Masonry Movement Joints

This session defines best practice for design and construction of moisture management systems for masonry cavity and veneer wall systems along with movement characteristic of vertical masonry wall systems. Focus will be on moisture control strategies, installation requirements, system components, and best practice for the design and construction of expansion and control joints to accommodate and/or restrict masonry material movement.

Masonry Plan & Specification Review

Over the years IMI has conducted thousands of plan and specification reviews for architects and engineers. This seminar is a collection of recurring observations of construction documents that will help you understand how to assemble comprehensive masonry information to create more functional, durable, aesthetically pleasing and economical masonry details. Better masonry information in your construction documents will help mason contractors give you more inclusive bids, minimize or eliminate requests for information (RFI's) and changes during construction, and help you establish realistic masonry expectations for your next project.
